good morning soldiers,

we go on box checking but apply a different approach today and want to wonder whether formerly firm communist or firm capitalist (rather) states (than continents) may have serious concerns after our take over. Since all checked boxes yesterday belong to capitalists we begin for a fair change with communists today.

Russia (Asia)

is certainly communist oriented. Is (or would it have been) it a danger to communism when a clear capitalist opts out (or would have opted out) and declare(d/s its fundamental ideological neutrality? We do not care about different ideal economic approaches of others. Pure capitalism which is better defined as pure market economies as well as pure communism which is better defined as pure plan economies are fine ideas and might work under relaxed circumstances. Pure capitalism would not know system relevant exceptions (from bankruptcy for german banks which aggressively speculated in Greece for example (unlike Lehman Bros. by the way)). Pure communism would estimate the labour over the capital. Why shouldn't both systems be able to coexist? Or why shouldn't dispassionate and fair mixtures of both in one and the same country be possible? Because of unreasonable fear. Typical unreasonable death fear on aggression side leads to reasonable death fear on the defensive side, the latter how every now and then to unreasonable categoric positions.

We are neither communist nor capitalist nor would we ever try to export our naturalist ideal. This needs to be imported by others if they want it. We inflict nothing on others.

Major, exactly this might be the danger in the eyes of stubborn ideologists. They could feel and fear their own vital markets for our brand new concept.

Hmm... Intelligent objection!

o. k., who are stubborn ideologists? Chinese economy zones like Shanghai do not look very communist and communist Russia even just agreed together with Ukraine to fuel internal capitalist markets also in future with gas from their own resources. The communists even own major premier league clubs. However, if we change our perspective we realise a coincidence. All christolic states are capitalists whereas among other religions both systems coexist. This allows the conclusion that the stubborn ideologists are christolic capitalists.

What about communist Russia, major, christolic as well, aren't they? Wasn't Stalin at least as stubborn as his western time mates and Khrushchev who wanted to berry us? Didn't the patriarch abuse spiritual communication to instigate mundane ideology likewise the pope (regardless of which type, suspicious churchtianity relieved (believable on grounds of east west schisma legend), seemingly as ideology-neutral as we today) to disguise their own holocaust battle fields on the other side too?!

Hmm... very observant! indeed I oversaw communist Russia while checking the Russia box. Quel faux pas! Thank you very much, soldier! Of course Russia is christian too. So with Russia we chose probably the most interesting Asian combination to look closer at first.

Hmm... and intelligent objection, suspicious churchtianity rumbled!

Indeed, major, let us quickly countercheck this and look into the russian-orthodox apostel's creed! In verse 9 of the official Moscau patriarchate creed the Russians expressly confirm their commitment to the holy roman catholic church. (The whole creeds differ only slightly and only in some other verses, but the holy roman catholic church is untouchable!)

Good move, soldier! Very unorthodox this russian apostel's creed, indeed! How ever believable. Very believable. Only believable even!

So it looks like Stalin and Khrushchev might have been receptive for abusive church communication as defendant against aggressive capitalism. (Removed/)Superseded drunken uncle Boris certainly would have been after Gorbachev's lovely mildness was relentlessly abused by catholic Helmut Kohl who sold the church reunited Germany straight away and even proudly broke his public office oath to defend his men's word to do the church hence god honour and to forward the right beliefs of course.

However, the former (KGB-)Soviet Union under possible church communication is intelligent Russia today. Instead of state under church law no doubt church under intelligent (and part wise certainly international) state law. I do not doubt that Russia is going to agree with sette colline which includes christian orthodox churches of course.

Russia ✓✓

(not only) Russia herewith double checked.

However, the review under ideological aspects might expose us to more serious international sanctions.

We have learned generally that there never was a natural ideological interest conflict. Both ideas were born and developed to cope with social challenges of the industrialization in the 19th and 20th century. Such social challenges terminated monarchies in West and East. The (already constitutional) monarchy of the german empire vanished eventually for ever as well as the russian Tsar empire. Both developments in the secret interests of their main churches.

Remember module 9: "When they occupied the other side the clerics limited spiritual information traffic in the same time and excluded mundane human life in general from it. Then they selectively accredited their statistically undetectable might addict class who they had formed and then recruited in their universities. They established their state servant and secretary networks (lead establishment) under the patronage of their arch dioceses within European populations and adjusted successively growing legislations accordingly."

Colonel Becker remarked already that this happened in America too. And the Russian example now shows that we more precisely formulate that European American and Russian legislations, in some cases whole government forms, were adjusted more or less successively.

So there was never a natural ideological interest conflict. Both ideologies only did not realize that their Christian churches who instigated secretly and invisibly both against each other were their true common enemy. The legend of the Oriental Christian church schisma is quite suitable to cover the same methods and interests of their preachers of controlling our side from the other side. And Orthodox sheep are not wiser than classic sheep, believe in the same blasphemy nonsense that the Jesus murder effaced their own original sin inherited from Eve's Adam himself. (how insane is this, by the way? Every new child born is innocent of course. And to lay the blame for general envy greed and meanness of human beings which the church systematically educates on Adam would maybe serve as analogy for our human genes. However, they contradict this interpretation themselves when they say that this original sin can be effaced. Then it cannot be genetic can it? So to blame poor Adam is wrong. They should blame their almighty himself who created Eve and Adam but hang only one apple at the tree and rested the whole next day instead of improving his creation, of filling this obvious gap at least! Today the substantial difference between conventional and Orthodox churches is that they celebrate their (own) merry (church) birthdays on 24 of December (conventional) and 6 of January (Orthodox)!) )

The Iron Curtain was and today's EU east and south borders are the artificially created horizontal mundane front lines and covers for the invisible vertical clerical violence which explain on the surface the visible damage of the invisible attacks against people on both sides created by Christolic intelligence (headquarter) abuse on both sides.

I quote intelligence officer John Ehrman again who registered in the course of his Hiss case literature review under Summing it up: "The book „the haunted wood“ also reminds us that Soviet agents had to deal with many of the same problems that intelligence officers must cope with today, including implementing unwelcome instructions from headquarters."

created by Christolic intelligence abuse on both sides. However, CIA headquarters, Langley Virginia, and their global diplomatic networks obviously in charge, being involved in every "civil war" on this globe as it seems, after the German Auswärtiges Amt needed to be superseded from its pole position in 1945. However, in 1950 already revived and re-equipped, under (unanimous how it looks like) allied victor supervision, with the same diplomatic staff who had organised the progress of end solution.

this now known, we really might fear more serious reactions tomorrow (on boxing day). If I was Peru or Georgia for example I would maybe overreact and expel German embassy and consulate staff (and quicker than ever catholic university teachers) straight away. And they would run. Imagine all our world wide diplomats would be expelled (ausgewiesen) from their locations instead of extradited (ausgeliefert). We would have a lot of unnecessary work to do recollecting all of them again.

One of our first international comments should therefore be a general international assistance request namely to impose house arrest on all german diplomats until their extradition.

In this context a second general international declaration must be made which is that in Germany/Freeland no diplomatic immunity exists any longer. Our temporary military government is not going to communicate with diplomats. They may stay if they want, without privileges, in order to assist their citizens in trouble (however, a little better than Jamal Khashoggi was assisted by his saudi embassy in Istanbul please!) in our country (although free and host friendly assistance would certainly be available too). But our international relations are chef cook matters. We communicate with our formal equivalents and maybe their team but never with their permanent state staff again. The only exception would be accepted for chinese diplomats if China would appreciate it because/in case their teams would be fairly identical with their permanent state staffs. However, also China is neither going to request nor to be granted diplomatic privileges from which only criminals benefit.

Soldiers, to be honest, I do not see a risk of real serious international reactions on boxing day. I think it would be quite boring now to look for further risks which might result from our initial move already and only come up with more nil returns.

Let us check the next boxes under consideration of possible developments like and after their final sylvester (bona note terra sera!) and think with more regard to the creative opportunities which our coup offers rather than to its illusory absolute risk freedom.

Recall our TTTeam spirit, soldiers:

Réunion, major!

Right.

We are no missionaries nor international police forces. Although it is no secret that we suffer from a pan occidental phenomenon we want to transform our criminal state into a fair and free country only and press nobody to follow our domestic and mundane solution. Communist and capitalist solutions are good as well. However, we need to press for international insight that we are fighting against the common phenomenon of invisible holocaust warfare conducted by common enemy churchtianity on common spiritual levels.

However, their thorough removal does probably but not necessarily effect the political system. In our special case it does. How other people want to be constituted is not our concern, as long as they are not longer under the vicious influence of the (d)evil which is our concern because we we are under the same influence and are never going to get rid of it on a mere domestic basis. And it is not only our concern in Freeland not to get infected again after our healing coup. We are under direct influence. However, earth regions under indirect influence "only" would certainly agree here which have the same concerns. The carcinoma is high infective and does not respect any border. What shall muslims and buddhists do to protect themselves? The best would be if they only needed to support our own eventual approach to solve our own problem which effects the whole globe however, wouldn't it?

We need ...

reunion on Réunion, soldiers!

... actually only to solve our own problem conclusively. To do it alone is an objective impossibility which is not our fault. So our international request to agree on mission sette colline is reasonable, which, hownever is going to take place if we do not even dare to begin our inevitable homeland work now!

Soldiers, enjoy your meal! Next time we look at our bright creative opportunities as new born Freeland's government (Freeland's temporary military infant government)!
